“People the world over are wired for connection and meaning. They are connected more now than ever before due to technology, but they also report feelings of disconnect and isolation, as well as experiences of incivility that affect their overall quality of life and well-being. Civility is a set of skills, attitudes and behaviors that can be learned and measured, and when applied, help create paths forward toward understanding and potential solutions to pressing problems. I am proud to be part of the Civility Experts Worldwide team helping to unify and build a more civil society.” – Jacqueline Moore.

The new USA office is pleased to offer an internationally validated Civility & Business Etiquette Trainer® Certificate program:
